MESSAGE

On the auspicious occasion of Children's Day, which commemorates the birth anniversary of the first Prime Minister of India, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, I extend my heartiest greetings to all my Arunachalee children. My blessings and best wishes to each one of you.

Children are our future. By providing them the opportunities to excel and imbibe good values, they will contribute in building our State and our Nation as one of the most prosperous countries in the world. By endowing our children with the best, we nurture for a better tomorrow for all, where every section of society enjoy the benefits of economic and social advancements. Nehru ji visualized the nurturing and welfare of children as a national priority. I hope this day will serve as a reminder to all of us, to renew our commitment towards the welfare of children and let them to live by Pandit ji's guidelines.

For our better tomorrow, let us give our best to our children today.
