MESSAGE

On the auspicious occasion of our 63rd Independence Day, I extend my heartiest greetings and best wishes to all Indians, especially my beloved Arunachalees. I also salute the brave personnel of our Armed Forces, Police and Para-military forces who guard our frontiers and maintain law and order in the country.

Independence Day is not only a historic occasion but it is one of the most sacred days for every Indians. By celebrating this historic occasion with jubilation and honour, let us pay our glowing tributes to those martyrs and numerous freedom fighters, who fought bravely for the freedom of our country. It will be a real tribute to those martyrs and freedom fighters on our part if we all can resolve to work hard unitedly with high sense of dedication to preserve the hard-earned freedom and to make India a peaceful, prosperous, developed and strong nation.

Our founding fathers fought not only for the freedom from foreign rule but also freedom from poverty, discrimination, corruption, social evils and internal and external disturbance. The very spirit of our freedom struggle was to seek freedom for every individual. In order to translate the cherished dream and vision of founding fathers of our nation, let us build an inclusive society, where the best interests of the people are served and where compassion is shown towards sections of society which need care. Let us work in unison for the betterment of our lives and lives of all future generations of Arunachalees. Let us work for balanced growth and economic empowerment of women for a humane and compassionate society. Let us provide people centric administration and deliver sensitive, responsive, efficient and affordable justice. Let us preserve our environment through individual contribution.
