First Lady attends IDPD programme

First Lady of the State appeals to the people of State Capital to come forward and appropriately help Deepak Nabam Living Home

The First Lady of Arunachal Pradesh Smt Neelam Misra visited the Deepak Nabam Living Home (DNLH) at Senki View, Itanagar and interacted with its inmates on the special occasion of International Day of Persons with Disabilities on 3rd December 2021.

The First Lady of the State said that the society, the community and the family members play an important role in determining the participative inclusion, on equal terms, of the differently abled people in social and economic events. She called upon each and every section of the society to focus and resolve on providing sustainable livelihood prospects and opportunities for our brethren who are differently abled.

The First lady of the State called for more awareness and understanding of disability issues and limitations, and mobilise mass support for empowering the differently abled persons to cope with the handicaps in their life and enable them to face the challenges with hopes and confidence. She reposed her faith on the valued cultural heritage that all will rise to the needs of the brethren with disabilities and make them equal partners in the developmental march of our society

The First lady of the State also emphasised that every section of the society must focus and resolve on taking care of the destitute, poor and downtrodden. We all have special duty towards our differently abled brethren, she said.

As a token of love, the First Lady of the State assured supply of ration to the Deepak Nabam Living Home for a month. She appealed to the people of State Capital to come forward and appropriately help the NGO.

Earlier, Chairman, DNLH Shri Deepak Nabam briefed the First Lady about the facility.
