Governor, First Lady of the State visit Oju Mission School

Governor celebrates his 72nd birthday in the midst of the Oju Mission children

Governor encourages school children to continue nurturing their curiosity and love for learning

The Governor of Arunachal Pradesh, Lt. General KT Parnaik, PVSM, UYSM, YSM (Retd.), accompanied by the First Lady of the State, Smt Anagha Parnaik, visited Oju Mission School, Papu Nallah, Naharlagun, on 28th June 2025. In their maiden visit to the school, which is run by the Oju Welfare Association, they toured the newly constructed academic block, inspected the smart classroom facilities, viewed student projects, and appreciated the photo gallery chronicling OWA's impactful journey in social service and education.

In keeping with a heartfelt tradition, the Governor celebrated his 72nd birthday in the midst of the children and teachers of the institute, spreading warmth and joy among the young students. The Governor and the First Lady of the State were warmly received and treated to a vibrant array of cultural performances presented by the children.

Deeply moved by the children's enthusiasm, talent, and discipline, the Governor lauded their performances and spirit. He encouraged them to continue nurturing their curiosity and love for learning, emphasizing that education is not just about acquiring knowledge, but about shaping character and discovering one's true potential.

The Governor advised the children, whom he called 'The Shining Stars' to set high goals, remain focused, and never fear failure, while stressing that each setback is an opportunity to grow stronger. He reminded them that the foundation of good citizenship lies in integrity, hard work, and a spirit of service.

The Governor, while emphasizing the holistic development of individuals, encompassing physical fitness, intellectual sharpness, and ethical conduct, shared the core principle of the National Defence Academy, which says that the cadets must be physically strong, mentally awake, and morally straight. He encouraged the students to adopt this mantra in their own lives, stating that true strength lies not just in the body, but also in a sharp mind and a good heart.

To mark the special occasion, the Governor and the First Lady also took part in a plantation programme under the theme 'Ek Ped Maa Ke Naam' within the school campus, signifying their commitment to environmental responsibility and nurturing values.

Oju Mission School stands as a beacon of hope for underprivileged children, offering inclusive and quality education in a caring and value-based environment.
