He also conveyed sincere Bihu greetings to the people of Assam on behalf of the State, while expressing hope that the elegance and sanctity of the propitious festival would bring enduring happiness, prosperity, and well-being to all.

In his message, the Governor said that Bohag Bihu, also known as Rongali Bihu, heralds the arrival of spring and the beginning of a new agricultural cycle. It is a time of renewal and hope, when the farming community rejoices in nature's abundance and offers prayers for a bountiful harvest. The essence of Bihu comes alive through its lively dances, melodious songs, and joyous celebrations that bring communities together in a spirit of unity and shared happiness, he said.

May this auspicious festival usher in peace, prosperity, and happiness for all, and may it continue to enrich our cultural heritage and strengthen the spirit of togetherness, the Governor wished in his message.
