Interacting with the students, the Governor shared valuable life lessons and encouraged them to make the most of their educational journey. Emphasizing the importance of education and discipline, he advised the students to cultivate a habit of continuous learning, curiosity, and self-discipline. He said that true success is built not only on academic excellence but also on good character, integrity, and a strong sense of responsibility. He reminded them that even small acts of kindness, compassion, and service can create a positive impact on society and contribute to nation-building.

Highlighting the importance of holistic development, the Governor urged the students to adopt the guiding motto, 'mentally alert, physically strong, and morally straight'. He encouraged them to respect their parents, teachers, and cultural heritage, noting that these values provide a strong foundation for personal growth and responsible citizenship. While remaining rooted in their traditions and identity, he advised the students to remain open-minded, embrace innovation, and learn from new ideas and experiences.

The Governor, who gave sports items for the students, also stressed the importance of maintaining good health and leading a disciplined lifestyle. He encouraged the students to stay physically active, avoid harmful habits, and channel their talents and energy towards constructive pursuits and service to society. He noted that healthy, confident, and socially conscious young people are the greatest assets of the nation.

Deeply impressed by the discipline, enthusiasm, and impressive turnout of the students, the Governor announced that he would facilitate coaching and mentoring for Sainik School aspirants by the Indian Army units in the State. He also announced the establishment of an Advanced Learning Centre and the provision of books to enrich the school library and promote learning.

The students captivated the audience with a vibrant cultural programme, beautifully reflecting Arunachal Pradesh's rich heritage and traditions, followed by an inspiring Yoga demonstration that highlighted discipline, harmony, and well-being.

Reinforcing his commitment to environmental conservation and sustainability, the Governor also participated in a plantation programme along with the teachers and students.
